For Channel 4's Escape to the Chateau, with Dick Strawbridge, the Chateau needed thermal stores and the expertise to design the correct solution for its heating system. After research, it chose Heatweb Solutions, and reports excellent service from our Technical Manager and his team.

The challenge

The Chateau needed thermal stores for its heating system, and the expertise to design the correct solution around them.

Before choosing a supplier, the Chateau researched the options: who could provide the thermal stores, and who had the expertise to design the system they would be part of.

What we did

- Supplied thermal stores for the Chateau's system.
- Designed the correct solution for that system.
- Supported the Chateau throughout, led by our Technical Manager, Richard Hanson-Graville, and his team.

What we found

- The Chateau's research found Heatweb Solutions the best provider of thermal stores.
- It found the same for the expertise to design the correct solution for its system.
- Thermal stores and system design came from one supplier, with our Technical Manager and his team on hand.

Escape to the Chateau, Channel 4.

The outcome

- Thermal stores in place, in a solution designed for the Chateau's system.
- Excellent service, in the Chateau's words, from Richard Hanson-Graville and his team.
- The Chateau describes its system on its own website: thechateau.tv/techy-bits.
